1.	Co-researcher of the APVV project no. 17-0217: Service interventions of members of the Police Force and application of the principle of proportionality from a criminal and administrative point of view The research is focused on a thorough review of the performance of official interventions of members of the Police Force with the use of coercive means, rights and obligations with an emphasis on respecting the legal principle of adequacy of the performance of official intervention. Adherence to the principle of proportionality is subject to analysis from three points of view - constitutional, administrative and criminal. The research focuses on defining the limit and degree of legitimacy of intervention by a member of the Police Force into the fundamental rights and freedoms of the person against whom the service is performed. Based on a critical legal analysis of relevant legal and internal regulations, decisions of public authorities, professional and scientific literature, the research brings qualified conclusions and guidelines, usable in applied police practice, which will specify how to perform a service intervention so that its implementation is consistent with the law, and thus the basic postulates of a democratic and rule of law were fulfilled. Solution period: 2018 - 2022 The most significant outputs: V2 HAŠANOVÁ, Janka

It follows the identification, analysis and interpretation of the most important court decisions, the content of which public administration executives should know and make decisions in accordance with it. [HAŠANOVÁ, Janka (100%)] The monograph clarifies the conceptual apparatus of administrative sciences with a focus on security aspects of administrative law. It reveals the links between individual legal institutes of administrative law that are applied in security sciences. In addition to the general part of substantive and procedural administrative law, it focuses on the areas of administration (regarding the personal status of persons, population registration, state symbols, territorial and administrative organization, association, assembly, elections and voting in referendums, trade licensing procedures, fire protection, civil protection, IZS and others) falling within the competence of the Ministry of the Interior of the Slovak Republic, i.e. on internal administration, which can be considered an important aspect of the security system of the Slovak Republic. The monograph has a fundamental impact on the development of security sciences and is capable of provoking a scientific discussion on the need for their constant legal regulation with an emphasis on the current social environment.

1.	Co-researcher of the APVV project no. 17-0217: Service interventions of members of the Police Force and application of the principle of proportionality from a criminal and administrative point of view The research is focused on a thorough review of the performance of official interventions of members of the Police Force with the use of coercive means, rights and obligations with an emphasis on respecting the legal principle of adequacy of the performance of official intervention. Adherence to the principle of proportionality is subject to analysis from three points of view - constitutional, administrative and criminal. The research focuses on defining the limit and degree of legitimacy of intervention by a member of the Police Force into the fundamental rights and freedoms of the person against whom the service is performed. Based on a critical legal analysis of relevant legal and internal regulations, decisions of public authorities, professional and scientific literature, the research brings qualified conclusions and guidelines, usable in applied police practice, which will specify how to perform a service intervention so that its implementation is consistent with the law, and thus the basic postulates of a democratic and rule of law were fulfilled.
