The International Scientific Conference „Thirty Years of the Slovak Republic (Legal and Security Aspects)“ is an international event that responds to the security and legal developments during the 30-year history of the Slovak Republic. At the same time, it highlights the relevance of legal science in this period. The aim of the event is to highlight the thirty-year development of security aspects of the Slovak Republic, as well as to emphasize the role of law in the period of independence. A sub-objective is to present knowledge about the development of the police or other security forces from its inception to the present, as well as visions for the future. The significance and contribution of the international scientific conference lies in the creation of a discussion platform as well as the formulation of conclusions and proposals that can be helpful in broadening the horizons of understanding of the Slovak Republic and its achievements during the 30 years of its independent existence as well as the future direction of the Slovak Republic at the national or international level.
