2. THE CASE OF BARCELONA

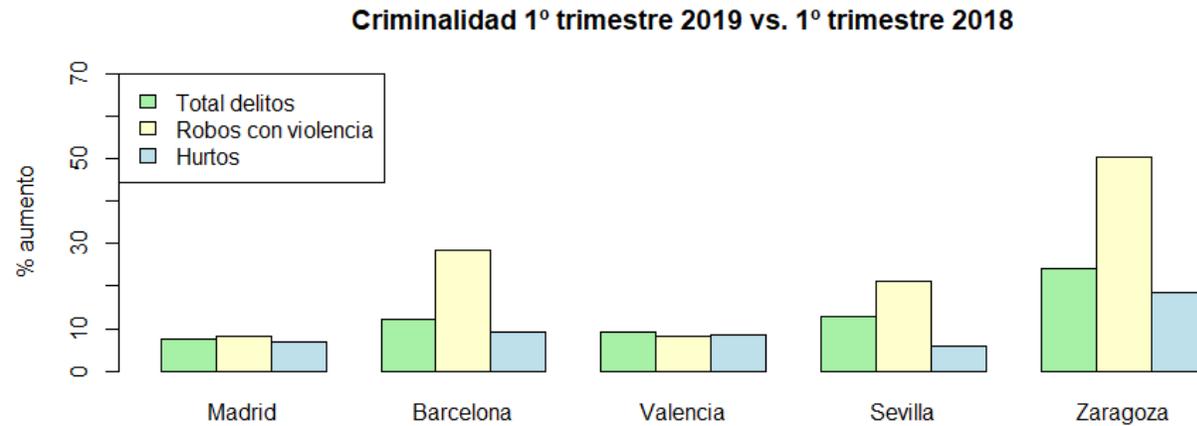

Analysis of the increase in crime in Barcelona

- ▶ Spain one of the lowest crime rate in Europe, and with a low level of violence.
- ▶ If we refer to Catalonia, or Barcelona, the situation is similar, but last months there has been an increase of crime rates in the city of Barcelona

Why Barcelona?

- Tourism as a claim.
- Failure of the social welfare system.
- Lack of investment in social policies.
- Saturation of police services.
- Old Police Models.
- Gentrification
- Very positive previous situation.
- Lack of investment in educational policies.
- Lack of investment in health policies.
- Lack of prevention by public administrations

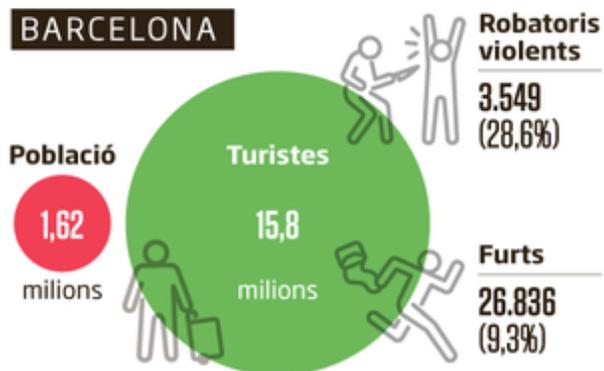

TOURISM AND CRIME

- Barcelona is the city with more tourism in Spain (4th Europe)
- 5 million tourists more than Madrid.
- It is clear that the increase of tourists affects crime.
- Tourism acts as an attractor of crime and organized crime. Tourist as a victim.

VÍDEOS DE PELEAS CALLEJERAS

U.S. Embassy advises U.S. citizens of an increase in violent crime in the city of Barcelona in 2019, specifically in popular tourist areas. Local authorities have reported a significant number of petty theft schemes that have included acts of violence, such as aggressive matches, and purses. In some cases, these incidents have resulted in injury.

 Los vecinos de Barcelona se sienten inseguros por los actos de violencia que se producen a menudo en la ciudad. En este mes se han producido cinco homicidios, lo que representa el 25 por ciento de todos los crímenes en lo que va de año.

3. IMMIGRATION AND CRIME

Correlation between immigration and crime (Barcelona, 2019)

IMMIGRATION AND CRIME

- For a long time different groups try to relate immigration to crime.
- Currently, several studies indicate that this link between crime and immigration does not correlate in a strong way.
- In Spain it is common for different sectors of the population to think that immigrants come to commit crimes

IMMIGRATION AND CRIME

- According to the Sociological Research Center (CIS), in 2015, 17.7% of citizens believed that immigration increased crime.
- However, the representation of immigrants in prison population statistics is very low.
- The criminology has always talked about the multifactoriality of crime, and that factors such as inequality, lack of opportunity and rejection can cause individuals to commit crimes (among many others).

Scientific evidence has shown that the existence of inequality and social exclusion, the increase in poverty rates and, in general, the deterioration of living conditions, can affect the increase in crime, not the place of origin

MIGRATORY ROUTES

Route made by minors, in many cases boys and girls to arrive in Spain and Europe. Source Publico, 2019

Features

- Some sectors and political parties have tried to link the increase in crime and violence in Barcelona with immigration and unaccompanied minors.
- As we can see, the data indicates that this is not the case, only a small part of migrated participates in crime.
- Another problem detected is the organized crime groups that visit Barcelona during the summer months to commit crimes such as theft or high-level robbery.
- If we analyze the data, in most of the European countries we could find the same results.

ASSAULT AND VIOLENT ROBBERY

The increase in violence in robberies is related more to other factors than to the origin of individuals.

- Male
- Age 15-18
- Lack of opportunities
- Lack of social and community support
- Alcohol and drugs
- Generally 3 groups: Personal factors, social support factors and environmental factors (Redondo, 2008)

~~IMMIGRANT = CRIMINAL~~

Lack of support for "correlation" in studies and data.

We could determine that any individual, under the same factors, could commit crimes, regardless of their origin.

The action of some political groups and "mass media" distort reality and generates the rejection of migrated people.

It is important that administrations and communities work directly to reduce rejection and attack false rumors about immigrants.

Marginality is one of the strongest predictors

~~IMMIGRANT = CRIMINAL~~

Many studies in the US and USA support that being immigrants is not a risk factor for crime, but other factors are.

1999-2012 legal and illegal immigration increased in the USA, but the national crime rate decreased, and more strongly in cities and regions with large numbers of immigrants.

Do not follow public policies, actions and opinions that criminalize, since they get important support in certain sectors.

4. POLICING IMMIGRATION

How should the police work?

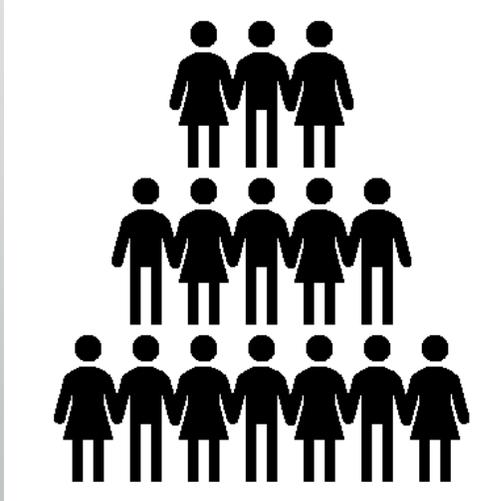

POLICE- MIGRANT RELATIONSHIP

- The police-migrant relationship has been for many years one of the main problems of the communities.
 - Unknowledge
 - Language problems
 - Culture issues
 - Distrust
 - Fear

What can we do?

Strategies to improve relations with immigrants (and other groups ...)

- COMMUNITY POLICE:
 - Community police models help improve the participation of the police in the community and the community in the police.
 - Knowing each other improves relationships and builds more trust.
 - Community models must work on police legitimacy, procedural justice, trust & confidence.
 - Participation

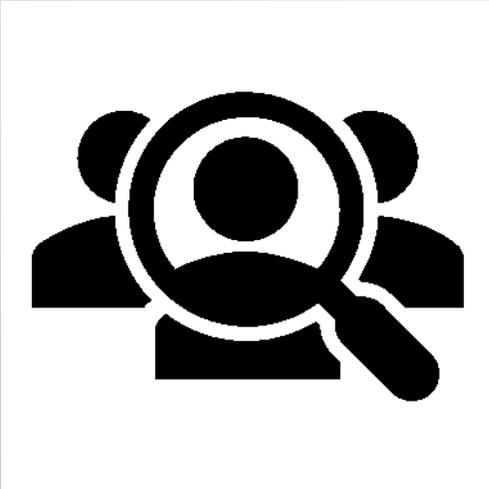

What can we do?

- Proximity police need the following requirements (EFUS, 2016):
 - Territory as a meeting point
 - Partnership
 - Versatility (combination of prevention, response, deterrence ...)
 - Accountability of police work
 - Priority in the community model

What can we do?

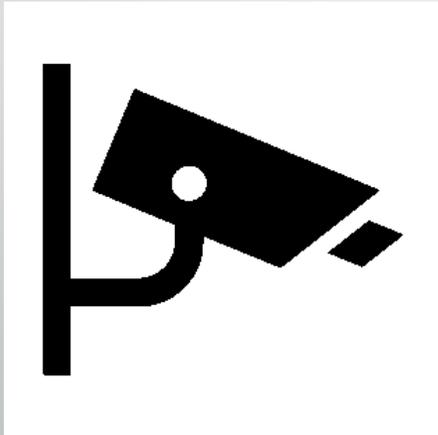

Strategies to improve relations with immigrants (and other groups ...)

- PROBLEM ORIENTED POLICING:
 - Work in partnership with community.
 - Diagnose problems and work it with the community.
 - Improve the legitimacy, trust and confidence.

What can we do?

Barcelona example. A community model allows to work on prevention, proactivity and improve relations and legitimacy

- In the case of Barcelona, the lack of police resources has meant that prevention has not been carried out for a long time.
- Saturation due to lack of police officers has caused a good part of the work to be reactive
- Is not only the number of police, it is the work they do.
 - Evidence Based Policing
 - Intelligence Led Policing
 - Proactive police

Evidence based policing

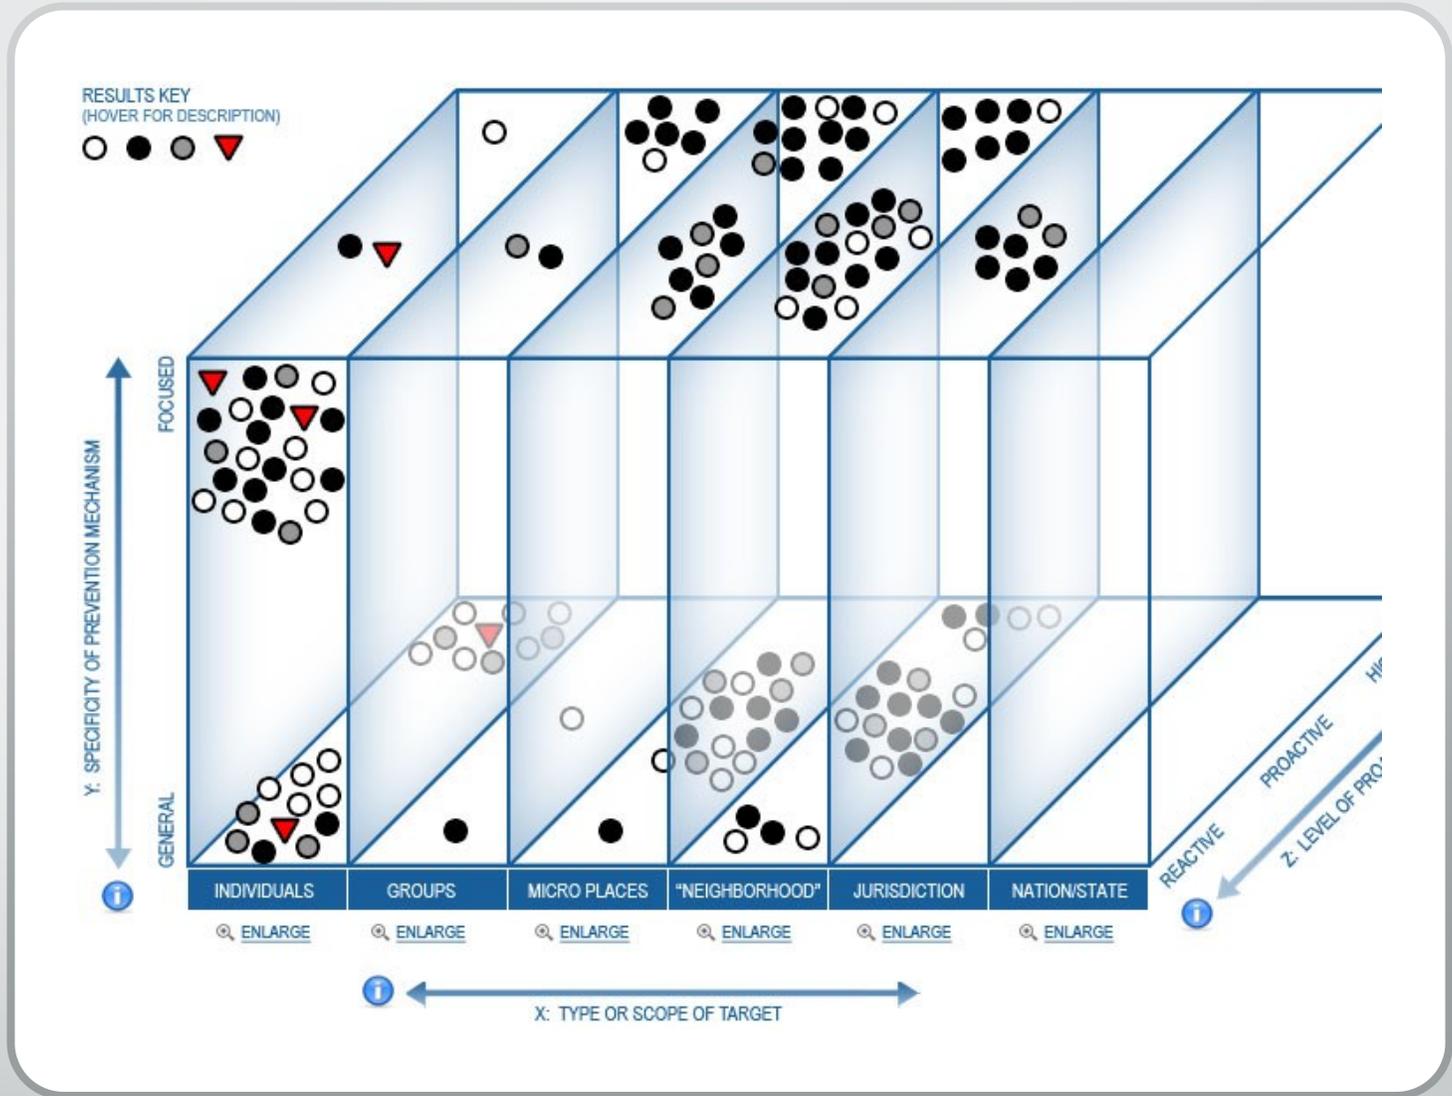

- Evidence-based policing (EBP) is an approach in which science is constituted as the main element when making decisions.
- Sherman (1998) explained to us that police practices should be based on evidence of what works best. For him, police organizations should work on two issues:
 1. Use the results of rigorous evaluations of police tactics and strategies to guide decision making.
 2. Generate and apply analytical knowledge of the data derived from the police institution itself in terms of crime and other issues.

Evidence based policing

- What do we need for police organizations to participate in evidence based policing? We need 2 equally important components.
 1. Increase in scientific knowledge: analyze the scientific literature that may exist on certain topics and that may be extrapolated to police organizations and subject to intervention. For this, it is ideal for the police to lead and participate in the hand of the academic world in research and studies that address the different issues that may matter to their communities.
 2. Translation of those results obtained in the investigations in an accessible and easy to digest format for the agents, who can carry it out, understanding the meaning of said tactic.

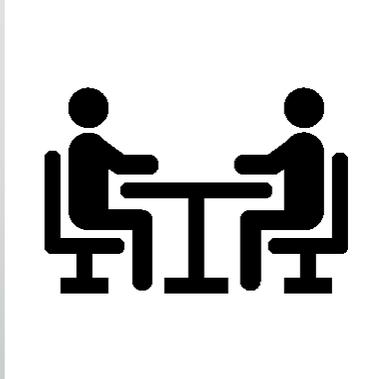

Evidence Based Policing

- Effective EBP + when focusing on specific objectives.
- Cynthia Lum et al., (2017) developed a matrix on which they work in 3 dimensions and 4 symbols. black circle = effective intervention; white = ineffective; gray = mixed result; Red triangle = harmful.
- Where black circles are most concentrated are in areas where interventions focus on proactive activity in places that are in the neighborhood or smaller or in people. This suggests that the general interventions that are applied are less effective than the targeted ones.

What can we do?

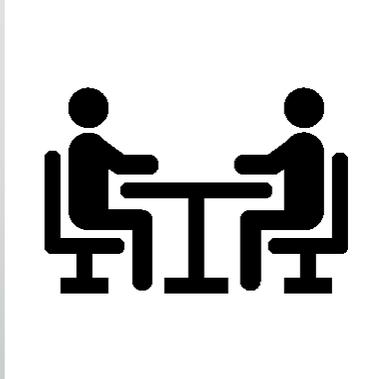

Trust, confidence & legitimacy

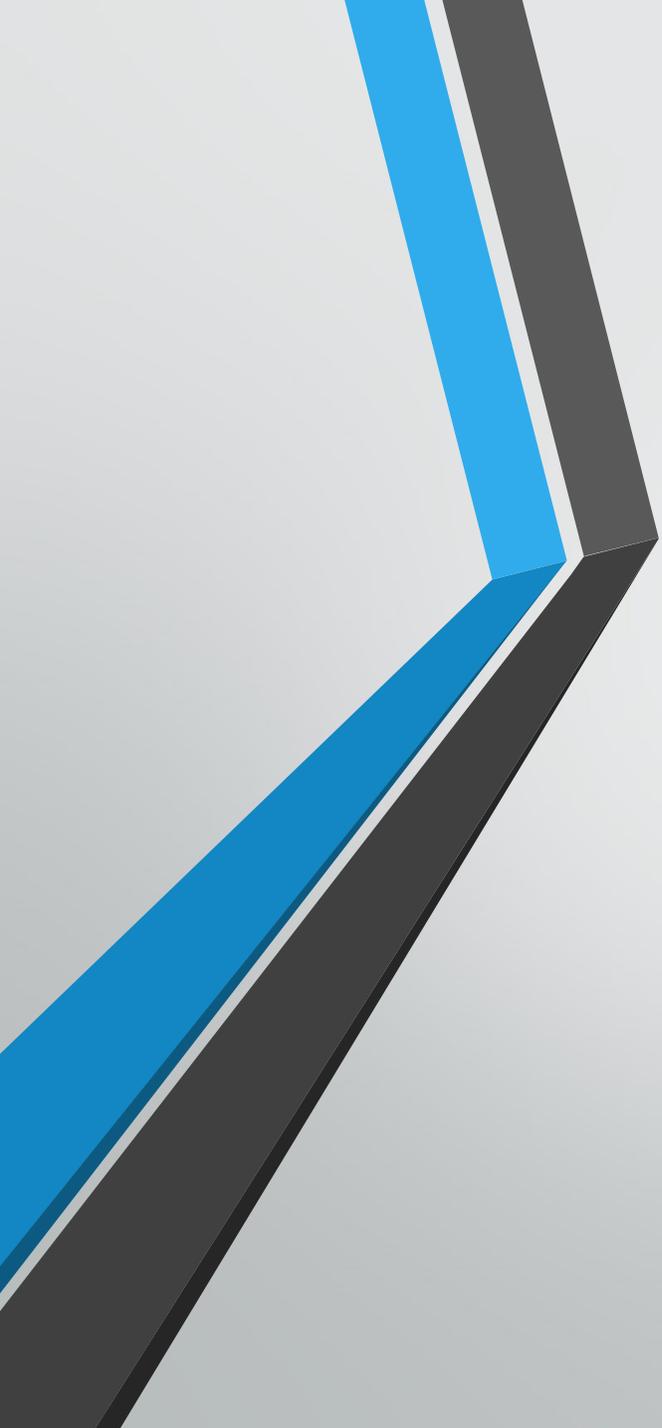

- According to Tyler (1990, 2006) to more police legitimacy, greater citizen cooperation, and greater willingness not only to comply with police orders, but also to comply with the law.
- If we lose this legitimacy diminishes deference to the authorities, voluntary compliance and increases the difficulty of governance and the possibility of resorting to more coercive actions.

What can we do?

Trust, confidence & legitimacy

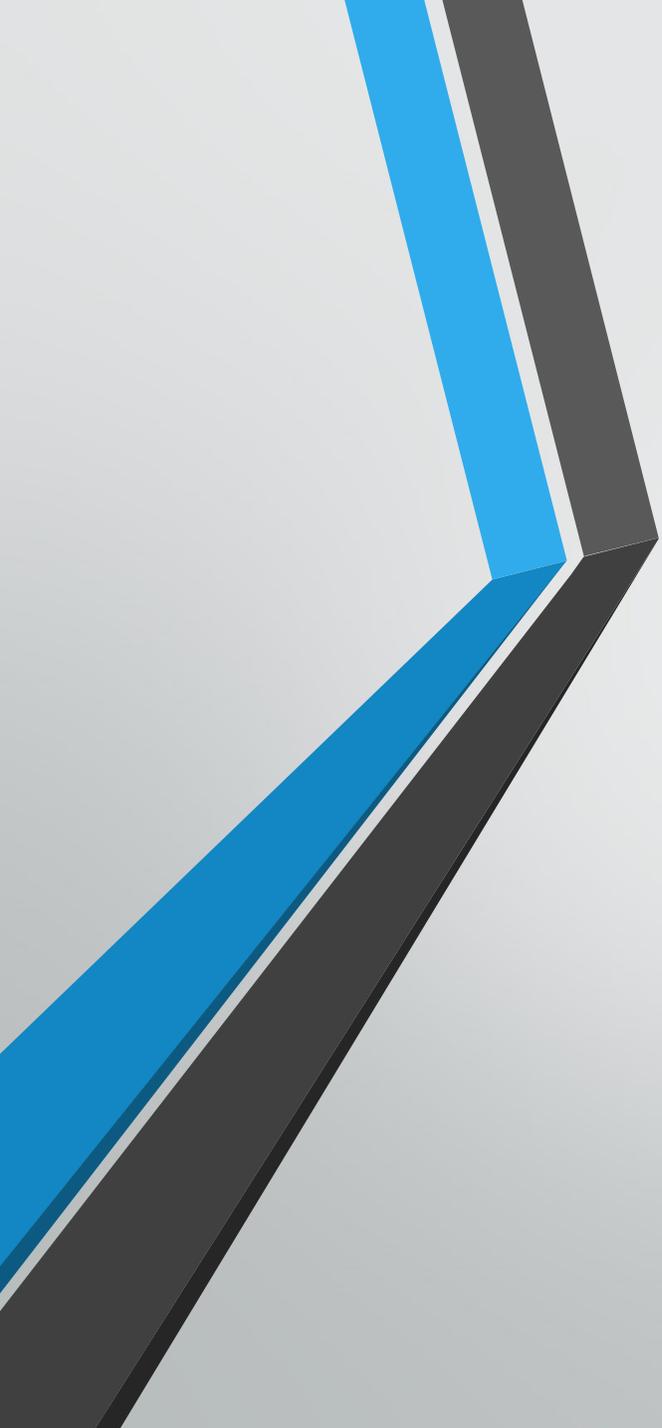

- As Hough et al. (2013) indicated, institutional legitimacy exists at the time that people subject to a legal authority feel the duty to obey this authority, understanding that it acts legally and shares its moral values.
- As a result, we can find several authors who indicate the importance of procedural justice in the construction of the concept of legitimacy.

What can we do?

- According to Bradford et al, (2013) there are two great experiences as potential sources of legitimacy, at least nominally, to the power of the police.
 - The relationship of people with the police as an organization, understanding the behavior of agents and surveillance styles and processes
 - Social context where the police and the citizen operate. The issue here is a broader consideration of knowledge or experiences people rely on to make legitimacy judgments.

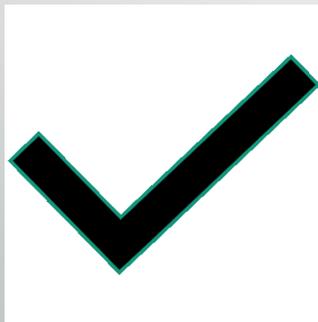

What can we do?

- Jackson et al., (2011) indicated that, in order to have confidence in the police, citizens should consider that they share the same values, motivations, goals and priorities, understanding social legitimacy as a "moral alignment" between individuals and system.
- The confidence in the police is formed by the group of assessments that the citizens make on the technical competence of the police to carry out their tasks; the extent to which the police share and take into consideration the interests and needs of the community; and the degree of justice with which the police treat citizens in their contacts (Jackson et al. 2012).

TIPS

The police proximity will allow us to work these actions in the communities

- Promote diversity management policies
- Meet the other, actions and formations based on empathy
- Police approach to risk groups
- Improvement of police attention to minorities
- Reduce identification by racial profile
- Encourage the entry of minority communities to the police
- Avoid populist speeches and correct hate attitudes
- Create police units aimed at working with risk groups or minority groups, creating a link with these

García España, E. y Carvalho da Silva, J. (2019). "Assessment of a juvenile delinquency prevention program with foreign unaccompanied minors in street situation" en Kriminologie. Special Issue (en prensa).

- Objective: Reduce situations of criminal risk of unaccompanied foreign minors living in the streets of Ceuta. This objective is necessarily achieved through social protection and inclusion strategies.
- Specifics:
 - Diagnosis of the situation of foreigners under 18 who live temporarily in the streets.
 - Intervene with these children through a team of social educators and psychologists for their greater protection and promotion of a prosocial lifestyle.
 - Investigate the criminological dynamics in which these foreign minors develop.
 - Study the levels of police legitimacy between these minors and the different police administrations
 - Analyze the victimization suffered by these minors and identify the perpetrators.
 - Evaluate the execution of the program, its impact and its sustainability.

PREMECE

What do they do with the minors?

- Assist in hygiene, food, health and legal protection.
- Develop strategies to prevent criminal behavior and promote a pro-social lifestyle in them through educational, sports and leisure activities.
- Intervene with these minors, seeking individualized responses to their needs and interests

6. CONCLUSIONS

CONCLUSIONS

- The police are not the only one who must work these problems, we need partenaires, not only from the police. (Academia, associations, communities...)
- However, in most cases it is the first contact or who can have more contact with immigrants
- We need to work about the legitimacy, trust, confidence and procedural justice
- Community policing as a key with:
 - Evidence based police founds
 - Intelligence Led policing
 - Problem oriented policing
- We need to know that Institutional discrimination, labeling, social disorganization and opportunity structure directly affect criminality, but not only immigrants, to any risk group (Garcia- España, 2014).
- We need to avoid de "cimmigration" message.
- Participation of the community with the migrants.....transform to "Communities that care"
