As the highest value of society and the individual, the state has the obligation not only to enshrine human rights in its legal system, in the constitution, but also to enable their realization and, above all, to protect them. The Police Force is also a part of the institutional system for the protection of human rights and freedoms, and it is precisely its tasks and service activities in specific defined areas that are the subject of research by the authors and the knowledge gained is presented in the presented monograph. According to the criteria of the Scientific Council of the Police Academy in Bratislava, determining the segmentation of outputs, this is a scientific work, which the author allowed herself to classify in category A.

Acknowledging the proper importance of the process of evaluating individual elements as rights representing a prerequisite for correct assessment and subsequently determining the best interest of the child, he devotes special attention to their analysis in the contribution. With the aim of their real materialization, they are illustrated on specific cases, decisions of the European Court of Human Rights. It pays special attention to the confrontation of conflicting interests in the process of applying Article 3 of the Convention on the Rights of the Child. In conclusion, the author formulates several considerations about the person of the judge called to decide in the best interest of the child. It also does not neglect the importance of a (although not legally binding) doctrinal interpretive approach, accepting the scientific knowledge of valid law, provided by representatives of legal science, whose reflections also extend to considerations of the influence of morality and justice acting alongside law as other regulations of social behavior. According to the criteria of the Scientific Council of the Police Academy in Bratislava, which determine the

We analyze compliance with the principle of proportionality from three points of view - constitutional, administrative, and criminal. In the research, we will focus on defining the limit and degree of legitimacy of the intervention by a member of the Police Force into the fundamental rights and freedoms of the person against whom the service intervention is performed. Based on a critical legal analysis of relevant legal and internal regulations, decisions of public authorities, and professional and scientific literature, we will bring qualified conclusions and guidelines usable in applied police practice, which will specify how to perform a duty so that its implementation is following the law.
