Sign.: F 18676, SF 1853 [NOVÁKOVÁ, Iveta (50%) - BINDEROVÁ, Martina (26%) - FERENČÍKOVÁ, Petra (12%) - ONDREJKOVIČOVÁ, Jelena (12%)] In the monograph, the authors elaborated on current issues of police vocational training in the field of professional language learning for selected police services - traffic police, riot police, border and foreign police and for investigators. The monograph is one of the first of its kind processed in the Slovak Republic. The intention of the authors was to interpret the above issues from the aspect of selected questions important for understanding the foreign language learning/teaching in the system of life-long training of police officers

	with emphasis on the use of e-learning in improving the quality of service activities performed by police officers. The authors pointed out the fact that the Border and Foreign Police Service will have an irreplaceable place in the implementation of measures taken by the European Union institutions in the field of irregular migration. The uniqueness of the output is enhanced by the analysis and interpretation of the results of empirical research to verify the effectiveness of the e-learning method in the international police environment. According to the criteria of the Scientific Board of the Academy of the Police Force in Bratislava stipulating the classification of outputs, it is a scientific monograph of an objective significance with global impact on the development of teaching and learning foreign languages for police purposes, therefore, the authors allowed themselves to classify the output in the A+ category.

Sign.: F 17869 [NOVÁKOVÁ, Iveta (60%) - BINDEROVÁ, Martina (40%)] In the scientific monograph, the authors interpreted the current state of professional language learning and teaching of border police officers in selected countries of the European Union and third countries. In addition, they analysed the institutional arrangements foreign language learning in individual countries. The originality of this output lies in the interpretation of language training harmonization in terms of the need to standardise the terminology base for border and foreign police for EU Member States in order to strengthen the language skills of police officers during joint operations at the EU's external borders coordinated by the European Border and Coast Guard Agency. The uniqueness of this output lies in the fact that the authors designed an effective and comprehensive model of professional language training and prepared proposals and recommendations for the process of harmonisation of common language standards at the European level. According to the criteria of the Scientific Board of the Academy of the Police Force in Bratislava stipulating the classification of outputs, it is a scientific monograph of an objective significance with global impact on the development of teaching and learning foreign languages for police purposes, therefore, the authors allowed themselves to classify the output in the A+ category.

IX. Other relevant facts

IX.1 Characteristics of activities related to respective field of study

Martina Binderova's professional career is dedicated to teaching English and Russian languages for both general and specific purposes for the needs of the Ministry of Interior of the Slovak Republic. She teaches foreign language modules in study programmes: 8.3.1 Security and legal protection of persons and property and 8.3.2 Security and Legal Services in Public Administration. She also teaches the specialised English language courses within the system of police life-long education and training. In her scientific and research work, she focuses her attention to the issues of applied linguistics – teaching English and Russian as foreign languages, English for specific purposes, designing learning materials in traditional and electronic forms. She participated in the development of e-learning English language modules for the public order police and traffic police services. She was a member of the research team that was awarded the European Label for Languages 2015 - a European Commission's initiative in the field of multilingualism for the scientific research project "Foreign Language E-modules for selected police services".

IX.2 Other activities

She is a member of the foreign language testing commissions with the purpose to test and establish the foreign language competence of members of the Police Force of the Slovak Republic. She has been cooperating with Slovak and international educational and training institutions, developing the relationships and exchange of knowledge and experience with the police praxis.
